Fluoride is available as a free online diamond (platinum) open access journal at <https://www.fluorideresearch.online> and <https://www.fluorideresearch.org> and the articles can be accessed by clicking on the links for the unique digital address (Digital object identifier [DOI] equivalent) below the title in the table of contents of each issue.

Fluoride will continue to be available in hard copy for a subscription fee of US$183 for 2025.

Information on Epublications ahead of print.

Papers published as epublications ahead of print will be published in due course in Fluoride. Papers in Fluoride will be given a year of publication, volume, and issue number but not new page numbers. They may be cited as e.g. Fluoride 2024;57(1): e254. Epub 2023 November 18. Papers should now be submitted using the template below, using only the portrait orientation and not the landscape orientation.

- Download template \(93kb .docx file\)

With the rolling publication template system now in use papers are published as Epublications within a few days of acceptance and then placed in an issue at a later date, when sufficient papers are available to make up an issue of 56 or 60 pages, with the year of publication, volume number, issue number, Epub number and date of Epublication. The issues will be sent to the printer approximately one month after they are published online and allocated to the quarter (January-March; April-June; July-September; and October-December) in which they were published online.

Information for authors and about the ISFR

Use of template for submitting papers to Fluoride

Articles should be submitted using the template on the website. Only the portrait page orientation should be used. The landscape orientation should not be used because of the difficulties this creates in printing Fluoride which has a portrait orientation. Please add square brackets to the reference numbers in the reference section e.g. [1] rather than 1, to meet the requirements of CNKI, a Chinese abstracting service which now covers Fluoride. Generally the template uses two columns. However some figures and tables are better displayed if they are in one column which is wider than each of two columns. To change from one column to two columns in Word (i) left click on the part of the text where want to change to one column, (ii) left click on Page Layout in the tool bar, (iii) left click on breaks, (iv) left click on section breaks continuous, (v) press enter several times to create some space for the table or figure, (vi) left click at the end of the required space, (vii) left click on breaks (viii) left click on section breaks continuous, (ix) left click and hold down the mouse and scroll down to highlight in blue the area for the table or figure, (x) left click on columns in the tool bar, (xi) left click on one. Papers that do not comply with the use of square brackets in the reference section or that do not use one column when required for the clarity of figures or tables will be returned to the authors for correction before receiving final acceptance for publication.

Copies of papers may be downloaded from the website. Word files may open differently on different computers upsetting the placement of figures and you are welcome to send both a Word file and a pdf file of a paper. The pdf files open consistently.

Editorial Policies of Fluoride: Fluoride follows the guidelines of the International Committee of Medical Journal editors with their Recommendations for the Conduct, Reporting, Editing, and Publication of Scholarly Work in Medical Journals, updated January 2025, and available from: <https://www.icmje.org/icmje-recommendations.pdf>. If a figure has been published, acknowledge the original source and submit written permission from the copyright holder to reproduce the material. Permission is required irrespective of authorship or publisher except for documents in the public domain.

Fluoride is the quarterly journal of The International Society for Fluoride Research (ISFR) which founded in 1966 at a meeting in Detroit of the American Society for Fluoride Research to promote the sharing of scientific information on all aspects of inorganic and organic fluorides. This is done by publication of the peer-reviewed quarterly journal Fluoride and the sponsoring of international conferences.

The scope of Fluoride: Fluoride is published on a rolling publication basis in both print (ISSN 0015-4725) and online (ISSN 2253-4083) and contains peer reviewed scientific reports on agricultural, analytical, biochemical, biological, chemical, clinical, dental, ecological, environmental, industrial, medical, metabolic, pharmacological, political, sociological, synergistic, toxicological, and veterinary aspects of inorganic and organic fluorides. The journal does not contain advertising.

Position of the ISFR on issues such as water fluoridation and environmental fluoride pollution: The Society does not hold an official position on issues, such as water fluoridation and environmental fluoride pollution, but encourages, through its conferences, and the publication of papers, commentaries, and letters to the editor, a critical examination of the scientific basis of the views which are held by individuals and organizations.

Peer Review Process:

Papers received by the Regional Editors and sent to suitably qualified persons for peer review and the comments of the reviewers are considered by the Regional Editor who will make a decision about whether the paper will be accepted, rejected, or be such that the authors are invited to revise it taking into account the comments of the reviewers. If the Regional Editor considers the paper is suitable for publication he or she will advise the Rotating Editor-in-Chief of their recommendation and the Rotating Editor-in-Chief will make the final decision on the publication of the paper.

Policies on Disclosure of Financial and Non-Financial Relationships and Activities and Conflicts of Interest:

The Editorial Officers of Fluoride support the ICMJE recommendations for disclosing conflicts of interest available at <https://icmje.org/recommendations/>. When authors submit a manuscript they are responsible for disclosing all relationships and activities that might bias or be seen to bias their work. To facilitate and standardize authors' disclosures, we encourage authors to complete the ICMJE Disclosure Form available at <https://icmje.org/disclosure-of-interest/>. The form should be sent to the Regional Editor along with the manuscript.

Policies on Informed Consent, Human Rights, and Animal Rights:

(i) Informed consent and human rights with human subjects: When reporting experiments on human subjects, authors should indicate whether the procedures followed were in accordance with the ethical standards of the responsible committee on human experimentation (institutional and national) and with the Helsinki Declaration of 1975, as revised in 2000 (World Medical Association Declaration of Helsinki: ethical principles for medical research involving human subjects. JAMA 2000 Dec 20;284(23):3043-5). Available from: <https://jamanetwork.com/journals/jama/article-abstract/193387>

(ii) Use of laboratory animals: The Editorial Officers of Fluoride strongly support the maintenance of the highest standards of animal care and the control of discomforts to animals in research. Authors must indicate whether their institutional and national guidelines for the care and use of laboratory animals were followed.

Article processing charges: Fluoride is available as a free online diamond (platinum) open access journal at <https://www.fluorideresearch.online> and <https://www.fluorideresearch.org>. No article processing or submission charges are made.
